

Pure Prepared Paint

A gallon of W. P. Fuller & Co's Pure Prepared Paint on a smooth or fair surface will cover 300 square feet two coats, and is guaranteed to cover as much surface as any lead paint mixed by hand and will look handsomer and wear longer. It must not in any way be compared with the cheap, worthless brands of mixed paint with which the market is flooded. For general excellence, W. P. Fuller & Co's Pure Prepared Paint is unsurpassed.

A cough is a danger signal. You should heed its warning promptly. Begin at once, and take regular doses of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

All serious lung troubles begin with a common cold. A cold in the throat easily passes to the bronchial tubes, and you have bronchitis, leading possibly to pneumonia or consumption. Stop your cold before it goes down into the chest. When you bring a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral into the house you bring with it relief, good cheer, hope, and sunshine. It is a standard and unrivaled remedy for colds and coughs.

There are many substitutes and imitations. Beware of them and of so-called "Genuine Cherry Pectoral." Be sure you get AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

Put up in large and small bottles.

THE ELKS' MINSTREL SHOW

The local lodge of Elks presented their fourth annual minstrel extravaganza, entitled "A Bunch of Nonsense" at the Hawaiian Opera House, last evening, to an audience that filled every seat. In originality and minstrel quality it ranked well with its predecessors, and in some of the scenic effects arranged, it excelled them.

The management was not quite able to keep its promise that the performance should be over by 10:30 o'clock, though it was not so very much later than this when the curtain went down on the finale, a very striking stage picture of an Indian camp in the forest, with a noble Elk in the background, disclosed just as the last verse of "Auld Lang Syne" was being sung by Hugo Herzer, the company and the audience.

There is considerable in the first part of the performance that can be cut out with advantage in Saturday night's performance. There are several of the colloquies between the end men and the interlocutor which are entirely too long drawn out for the quality of the humor or witless in when they culminate, and there are entirely too many good things in the songs, topical and otherwise, and in the snappy colloquies, to handicap them with the ponderous ones. For instance if the local steamer than John McCandless built were cut down about two-thirds it would improve it vastly.

Its a good show that will bear repeating, but it will be a better show Saturday night if there is not so much in it to repeat.

The introduction of the end men after the opening chorus by the circle, was particularly happy—summoned as they were by Mephistophiles, and arriving by automobile, air-ship and steamship, and from the festive watermelon, the historical bottle of Scotch and an art poster.

"My Irish Molly O" sung by James Dougherty in pleasing voice was an excellent introduction to the more "minstrelly," "Every Little Helps," by J. C. Johnston, and "Everybody Works but Father," by J. Walter Doyle. In each of which topical verses were introduced that hit off some local character or condition. The Oregon Girls and Bert Peterson were particularly cleverly handled in Doyle's song.

The tension of travesty was relieved by the really beautiful "It Was Not So To Be," sung excellently by I. S. Dillingham, and then came some more local hits in "Mr. Lawson the Man From Boston," by A. H. Moore, "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," by Robert W. White, "The Mormon Con," by J. Hastings Howland, and "On Robinson Crusoe's Isle" by Guy Livingston.

These songs were interspersed with colloquies between the end men and the interlocutor A. E. Murphy, in which the "business" as a rule was exceedingly well designed and executed. There is room to question the good taste, even in a minstrel performance, of some of the things said about the Oregon Girls in one of these colloquies.

Among the hits of the costumeing were certainly J. Walter Doyle's "Black and White, Scotch," and Bob White's sailor outfit, especially his cap.

The olio opened with a song by the Dillingham quartette so well given that the singers had to respond to a recall.

Sam Johnson assisted by Ben J. Clark, U. Lemon and George Clerk gave a splendid exhibition of work on the horizontal bar. Most unfortunately Sam Johnson, in jumping from the bar at the finish of one of his exercises, hurt his foot and was not able to go on.

Bruce Hartman's stunt was one of the best of the evening. Made up to caricature a down-east farmer, he recited in very good verse how he had been sent for by "Governor Jack" to come to Hawaii and report on land and labor, small farming and a few other things. He even read the letter. Then he told what he had found, and he told it well. The small farmer, the Molokan, the missionary, the governor and the acting governor, and pretty nearly everybody else of prominence, and pretty nearly everything of current interest, came in for deft joshing. The audience evinced its grasp and enjoyment of the "hits" by frequent applause.

The Gingham Quartette, Robert White, Guy Livingston, J. Hastings Howland and J. C. Johnston gave some of the old fashioned negro melodies with coon song and rag time accompaniments.

The last scene, that of the woodland camp, was strikingly well designed and arranged. The entire performance was given under the stage direction of James Dougherty and reflected credit on his skill.

The program was as follows:

BROWN WINS BIG HILO CASE

WATERFRONT SUIT WHICH HAS BEEN FOUGHT NEARLY SEVEN YEARS

Nearly seven years after the litigation began, a verdict was rendered yesterday afternoon in Judge De Bolt's court in favor of the plaintiff in the case of C. A. Brown vs. J. D. Spreckels, involving valuable land on the Hilo waterfront. The trial this time was by no means the first and may not be the last. It occupied nearly four weeks. The last act was an exception to the verdict by counsel for the defense, and notice of a motion for a new trial.

Magoon made the closing argument for plaintiff, occupying nearly all of yesterday morning. Judge De Bolt immediately charged the jury, and about five hours were occupied in deliberations. Then a verdict for plaintiff, for all the pieces of property involved, was rendered. The case involves land which is likely to be of very high value when Hilo develops. The first trials were in Hilo, but a change of venue was secured by counsel for the defense, on the ground that they could not secure an unprejudiced jury in Hilo. The claims of Spreckels were on the ground of adverse possession, while Brown introduced evidence which evidently satisfied the jury, showing breaks in the occupancy of the land by him, and provided a paper title. W. A. Kinney and S. M. Balfou appeared for Spreckels and J. A. Malcom and W. L. Stanley for Brown. The jurors were: R. H. P. Lishman, Charles H. Pfeiffer, James E. Jaeger, A. M. Wells, W. Buckle, G. C. Cowan, Henry P. Benson, T. W. Chase, J. Mitchell, F. C. Atherton, Henry W. Doane and George C. Fuller.

SIGNS OF TROUBLE IN CHINA.

There seems to be no doubt that the vast and normally inert mass of China's population is now undergoing a species of fermentation, although reports emanating from the northern provinces are less alarming than those which come from the region south of the Yangtze Kiang. A survey of the whole situation indicates that there are no fewer than three independent movements, namely, a movement for reform, education, social, economic and political; an anti-foreigner movement, and an anti-dynastic movement.—New York Sun.

ABUSE OF THE PAROLE POWER.

A few days ago it was thought necessary to bring in a new indictment against a notorious Cleveland bank robber now in the penitentiary in order to head off a movement to effect his release on parole. Now a somewhat similar case comes from Columbus, where a convict has been set free in spite of the protest of the county prosecutor and the trial judge. These instances come to light so often as to give too much reason for the popular belief that no man with money or a pull need stay long in the state penitentiary and that the parole system as administered is partly an encouragement to crime and partly complicity in it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
